April 23rd, 2018

Location: Bulger South

Open to everyone

In the course of building our characters, nurturing healthy personal relationships, and fulfilling our moral duties to other people, we must confront larger, sometimes frightening questions: Does human life have inherent meaning? If so, what is the nature of that meaning and how do we cultivate it? If not, is it possible for human beings to still create their own fragile meaning? How might that be accomplished and of what does its value consist?
